Our lawful bases for processing personal data

We only collect and use pupils' Personal Data when the law allows us to. Most commonly, we process it where:

- We need to comply with a legal obligation;
- We need it to perform an official task in the public interest (in order to provide pupils with an education and to offer extra-curricular activities);

Less commonly, we may also process pupils' Personal Data in situations where:

- We have obtained consent to use it in a certain way;
- We need to protect the individual's vital interests (or someone else's interests).

Our lawful bases for processing 'Special Category' personal data

Special categories of data means Personal Data revealing:

- racial or ethnic origin;
- political opinions; religious or philosophical beliefs or trade union membership;
- genetic or biometric data that uniquely identifies you;
- data concerning your health, sex life or sexual orientation; or
- data relating to criminal convictions or offences or related security measures

We process special categories of Personal Data where necessary under the following lawful bases:

- Processing is necessary for substantial public interest in complying with legal obligations including under the Equality Act 2010;
- Processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person and where safeguards are in place to ensure that this Personal Data is kept secure;
- The data subject has given explicit consent or a person with the lawful authority to exercise consent on the data subjects behalf;
- Processing is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims or whenever courts are acting in their judicial capacity;
- Processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes.

Where we have obtained explicit consent to use pupils' Personal Data, this consent can be withdrawn at any time. We will make this clear when we ask for consent and explain how consent can be withdrawn. If consent is the only legal basis for processing and has been given, then this may be revoked in which case the Personal Data will no longer collected/processed.

Some of the reasons listed above for collecting and using pupils' Personal Data overlap, and there may be several grounds which justify our use of this data.

National Pupil Database

We are required by law to provide information about pupils to the Department for Education as part of statutory data collections such as the school census.

Some of this information is then stored in the National Pupil Database (NPD), which is owned and managed by the Department and provides evidence on school performance to inform research. The law that allows this is the Education (Information about Individual Pupils) (England) Regulations 2013.

The database is held electronically so it can easily be turned into statistics. The information is securely collected from a range of sources including schools, local authorities and exam boards.

The Department for Education may share information from the NPD with other organisations which promote children's education or wellbeing in England. Such organisations must agree to strict terms and conditions about how they will use the data.

For more information, see the Department's webpage on how it collects and shares research data.

You can also contact the Department for Education with any further questions about the NPD.

Transferring data internationally

We do not routinely share data with organisations outside the EEA.

We will not transfer personal data outside the European Economic Area (EEA) unless such transfer complies with the GDPR. This means that we cannot transfer any personal data outside the EEA unless:

- The EU Commission has decided that another country or international organisation ensures an adequate level of protection for personal data
- One of the derogations in the GDPR applies (including if an individual explicitly consents to the proposed transfer).

Parents and pupils' rights regarding Personal Data

Individuals have a right to make a 'subject access request' to gain access to personal information that the School holds about them.

Parents/carers can make a request with respect to their child's data where the child is not considered mature enough to understand their rights over their own data (usually under the age of 13), or where the child has provided consent.

Parents also have the right to make a subject access request with respect to any Personal Data the School holds about them.

If you make a subject access request, and if we do hold information about you or your child, we will:

- Give you a description of it
- Tell you why we are holding and processing it, and how long we will keep it for
- Explain where we got it from, if not from you or your child
- Tell you who it has been, or will be, shared with
- Let you know whether any automated decision-making is being applied to the data, and any consequences of this
- Give you a copy of the information in an intelligible form

Individuals also have the right for their personal information to be transmitted electronically to another organisation in certain circumstances.

If you would like to make a Subject Access Request (SAR), please contact the School through the usual channels.

We will aim to respond to SARs within 30 days of receipt of a valid request. If responding to your request will take longer than a month, or we consider that an exception applies, then we will let you know as soon as possible.
